We received an amazing opportunity to teach financial education to kindergarten through 5th grade students as part of the Coeur d'Alene School District's CDA4Kids program. This after-school program provides enrichment opportunities to students during non-school hours. Most students enrolled are low-income or considered homeless by the school district. For November's classes, we talked about money, its value, and how to count it. We also touched on the importance of saving. In December, they will learn budgeting and real-life money skills by visiting a pretend grocery store and purchasing dinner items on a set budget.
